Slated to Reach Millions of Customers

Anaheim, CA – June 4, 2014 – The World Floor Covering Association has completed the third leg of its largest-yet coast-to-coast media tour. The organization’s annual tour is a key part of its ongoing effort to educate consumers about new floor products, trends and technologies.

Scott Humphrey, Chief Executive Officer, WFCA, and public relations agency of record Story Dept. are meeting with target consumer press in New York (NY), Birmingham (AL), Des Moines (IA), as well as targets in Northern and Southern California, over the course of four months. The tour will wrap in late summer. By that time the WFCA team will have met with and provided information and product demonstrations for more than 70 editors and writers from over 40 of the top nationally distributed home and shelter magazines and newspapers, as well as some of the home décor focused websites.

To prepare for the tours, WFCA trend scouts select innovative new products that launched at the Surfaces tradeshow and industry-wide to share with press. In total, the WFCA contacted over forty Surfaces exhibitors and manufacturers from around the world to participate in the tours. Making the list for 2014 are thirty-five products ranging from paper shag area rugs to reclaimed hardwood floors made from truck decks.

This year’s tour kicked off in late April in New York - home to the country’s largest concentration of consumer home and shelter magazines. The three-day NYC leg, which took place April 29th through May 1st, included stops at Interior Design, Good Housekeeping, Elle Décor, HGTV

ABOUT WFCA:

“Our association is in a unique and strategic position to influence and educate consumer press about flooring,” said Humphrey. “We do not manufacturer any products and are not pushing particular products. The press recognizes our voice as uniquely unbiased and pays attention to that voice.”

“Through our relationships we have access and a platform to reach some of the most influential media in the world and make a meaningful difference in how our industry is positioned,” Humphrey added. “Our presentations provide an opportunity unlike any other to showcase the dedication to quality and never-ending creativity of our flooring industry, as well as our commitment to our customers.”
